

Can you tell us a bit about yourself including how you came to work at Angel, your early training and the experience you have been able to achieve working with Angel in various offices.

I was headhunted by ANGEL and I thought to myself that this company was very unique, especially in Singapore. I did some research and found out the company's core business is related to gaming industry. This even intrigued me further so I decided to take up the offer!

I started with playing cards production in ANGEL Factory then to production of the famous Angel Eye Shoes used in almost every casinos and eventually progressed to our Smart Table System division.

What is your background? Where did you grow up and what was it like?

I was born, raised & educated in Singapore. My character is quite shy so it took me awhile to open myself up to new experiences but I saw myself being quickly drawn to learning and working in more technical areas. So you can kinda call me a techie kinda guy!

And I grew up loving cars, spending hours and hours researching about their make and model. I guess, this "technical love" also spilled into my passion for computer building and gaming as well.

What does a typical day in the life of Prasanth? How have you enjoyed the Philippines?

My work normally takes me onsite at casinos so I am more on the ground, getting my hands dirty, working on technical matters and interacting with the customers.

Philippines has been great! Early days, there were many new challenges and new environments but luckily, the Filipinos' warm hospitality helped to put me feel at home here. Thankful for them!

What are some of the key lessons you've learned during your time in your current role?

Good communication and building trust with customers and people I work with are extremely important.

What do you enjoy most about being part of the gaming industry?

The industry is very niche as compared to others, which means we are a closely knitted community.

Individuals move around in the industry bringing their own valuable experience wherever they go and this helps the younger members in the industry to learn & grow under their guidance, which is fantastic!

Who has been the most influential person in your life?

My mother has been the most influential person in my life.

I believe her strong character and sharp mind have laid the foundation for me as a person today.

What is your favourite holiday destination (other than Singapore), and why?

I enjoyed going to Brisbane, Australia. I fell in love with the city and the pace of life there. The weather in the autumn was also great for me since we don't get any seasons coming from Singapore.

What do you like to do outside of work to relax?

I like to play football to keep myself active and play computer games when I want to hibernate at home. I also enjoy hunting good foods everywhere around the world. I love to eat!

Where do you see yourself in 10 years' time?

At this stage of my life, I have always been the mentee, receiving valuable advice from my mentors. I want to return this kindness and pass the knowledge and advises to the new comers as a mentor myself.
